BRANDON CONTENT - BATCH 20

75 ideas plus full verdict sets. Orange = film first. Items are written to be arguable, not obvious.

WHY THIS BATCH IS WEIGHTED THIS WAY

Last 90 days: 174 posts. Single-point clips were 112 of them at a 1,980 median. Rankings were 13 at a 19,724 median. Every top-15 video in the window was broad money or career. The mix, not the craft, is what capped the quarter. Target: one ranking, tier list or head-to-head for every three one-pointers.

GREEN FLAG / RED FLAG

Every item can go either way. If he answers instantly, the item was too easy.

43. Your first boss
    Cold open: the pay one. Everyone assumes it's green.
    - Pays you more than the role is worth
    - Tells you what they think of your work immediately, in front of people
    - Has never fired anyone
    - Gives you work you're not ready for
    - Answers your messages at 11pm
    - Has been in the same job for twelve years
    - Never asks about your life outside work

44. A startup offer vs a corporate offer
    Cold open: the equity one.
    - Equity instead of 20% more salary
    - The founder has already failed twice
    - Twelve people and no HR
    - They've raised a lot of money
    - They've raised nothing and are profitable
    - Your title would be two levels above what you've earned
    - Everyone there is under 30

45. Your business partner's spouse
    Clickbait pick. Nobody makes this video.
    - They're in the business too
    - They've never met you
    - They handle the books
    - They told your partner not to do the deal
    - They're the reason your partner works less now
    - They have their own successful business
    - Your partner checks with them before every decision

46. A client who negotiates hard
    Cold open: the first one.
    - Pushes hard on price, then pays early every time
    - Agrees to your number immediately

- Asks for a discount for a bigger commitment
- Brings their lawyer to the first conversation
- Tells you exactly what your competitor quoted
- Has fired two vendors before you
- Never asks about price at all

47. A company's hiring process

- Three interviews for an entry-level job
- They offer on the spot
- They ask you to do paid sample work
- You meet the owner in round one
- Nobody can tell you why the last person left
- Everyone you meet has been there under a year
- They ghost you two weeks, then rush you

48. Someone who says they're an entrepreneur

Clickbait pick, and it's a fight.

- They've never had a job
- They've had six businesses in four years
- Their business is teaching people to start businesses
- They're profitable but tiny
- They have investors but no revenue
- They still work a W2 and build nights and weekends
- They drive something expensive

49. A business you're thinking about buying

- The owner wants to stay on for a year
- The owner wants out in 30 days
- One customer is 40% of revenue
- It hasn't grown in five years but never shrinks
- The books are a mess but the cash is real
- It depends entirely on the owner's relationships
- The seller is financing most of it

50. Your accountant

- Only contacts you in April
- Brings you ideas you didn't ask for
- Says an aggressive strategy is legal but they wouldn't do it
- Charges by the hour
- Charges a flat annual fee
- Has never asked what you're trying to build
- Says no to something you wanted to do

51. A franchise pitch

- Every location in your market looks busy
- The franchisor pushes territory scarcity
- They won't connect you with a struggling owner
- The founder still runs locations themselves
- The buy-in is far lower than you expected
- They require you to use their vendors
- Their best locations are all owned by one multi-unit operator

52. A market you're thinking about expanding into

- Your biggest competitor just left
- Population is up, permits are down
- One employer accounts for most of the jobs
- Everybody you ask there is optimistic
- Rents are far cheaper than your home market
- You don't know a single person there
- A national brand just signed a lease
